On 02/24/2020 at 09:32 hours, Officer J. Wright (0063087) reported a memo at 7255 Lee Hwy. Police were called to the listed location on a wellness check call. Caller, whom was not on scene, called and expressed concern for her friend, Elizabeth Lundgren, because Lundgren had contacted her yesterday saying she thought she was having a stroke. Upon police arrival, Lundgren's listed black Jeep was located in the parking lot. Dispatch located no medical calls placed last night to Lundgren's apartment. Police knocked on the door, quiet loudly, for several minutes and announced ourselves as police, but Lundgren never responded, physically or verbally. Police also attempted to contact Lundgren's emergency contact, boyfriend Dan Cuzzo [REDACTED], but no contact was made and the calls only went unanswered. Due to the concern that Lundgren may have possibly had, or was currently having a debilitating medical issue occur to her, and concern for her wellbeing, police contacted the leasing office and they sent maintenance to the apartment with police, with a key. Maintenance knocked loudly several times and announced themselves, but Lundgren still never responded. Maintenance unlocked the door, but the security interior lock was engaged. Police and maintenance announced ourselves again, but Lundgren still never responded. Maintenance then began to disengage the security lock and as they tried to do so, Lundgren ran at the door, screaming we were breaking into her apartment. Police announced ourselves, but Lundgren refused to listen and began making phone calls, including to dispatch, to complain that we were breaking into her apartment. It is worth noting that the security lock was never fully disengaged, and neither police nor maintenance made entry into the apartment. Lundgren eventually opened the door, but only to scream at police and tell us she was going to sue us and the department for breaking into her apartment. Once police could actually speak without being yelled over, we explained why we were there, but Lundgren didn't want to listen and just continued to yell at police. I was able to ask Lundgren if she needed us or medical personal, and Lundgren declined. Police then left the scene.

She sent me a cashier check which cleared the next day after depositing the check. The check was for 2950 dollars. She told me to keep 100 dollars for gas. She wanted me to send money orders to the movers in order to move the painting and other items that I did not sell her from around the same area.

She said the movers would come that following Saturday to get the painting. The movers never showed up. I text her to see if the movers were coming late she said they would come Monday. Monday rolled around and she said that the movers might have scammed her.

When I went to the bank to check on the money it was negative in my account by 2577.99. So now I still have the painting but I have been scammed by this woman and my account is no longer active.

I will attach their contact info and pictures of the money orders and receipts of this faulty transaction.

Here is all the information I have on Judith Cox buyer of the painting on Craig's List.

Mr. Carter told me he pushed Mr. Parks away from him and told Mr. Parks he was going to call police. Mr. Carter told me Mr. Parks said "fuck the police" and then left the scene. Police located Mr. Parks and identified him as Nathaniel Parks. Mr. Carter informed me, though he was in fear, that he did not want to prosecute and that he wanted Mr. Parks trespassed from the property. I informed Mr. Parks that he is trespassed from the property and that if he returns, he will be arrested for such. Mr. Parks left the area without incident. Nothing further.
